Subject: Study on Standardised Packaging in relation to Non-Cigarette Tobacco Products

Dear Sir,

Thank you for your correspondence.

We are aware of the study the Singapore Government cites, and it is based on self-reporting of possible behaviours and attitudinal opinions, rather than actual fact-based data from markets where plain packaging has been implemented. We would urge you to look closely at the effects of plain packaging in countries like France and the UK, in which smoking prevalence has not been impacted, but counterfeit plain packs are already available on the streets.

In summary, the introduction of plain packaging is having a detrimental effect to the retail trade in the UK, boosting the black market and is failing in its original public health intentions.

Kind regards

Suleman Khonat

Dear Sir/Mdm,

Thank you for your response to our public consultation on proposed tobacco control measures and the Singapore Government's proposal for the introduction of standardised packaging together with enlarged graphic health warnings (hereinafter collectively referred to as "the SP Proposal").

2 As mentioned in Section 4.3 of the Public Consultation Paper on Proposed Tobacco-Control Measures in Singapore (the "Public Consultation Paper") published on 5 February 2018, the Health Promotion Board (HPB) had commissioned a qualitative study on standardised packaging in relation to non-cigarette tobacco products. We would like to inform you that the study has now been completed, and is available for public comment at https://www.moh.gov.sg/proposed-tobacco-control-measures for two weeks from 11 June 2018 to 25 June 2018.

3 As you have previously demonstrated an interest in the Government's SP Proposal, we are writing to inform you of the completed study and to invite you to submit any comments that you may have.

4 Should you decide to submit any comments, please ensure that you indicate your name, contact number and e-mail address, so that you may be contacted for follow-up questions or responses, if any.

Respondents may request confidentiality for any part of their comments that is believed to be proprietary, confidential or commercially sensitive. Any such information should be clearly marked and placed in a separate annex. If confidential treatment is granted, the Government will consider, but not publicly disclose, the information. If the request for confidential treatment is rejected, the information will be returned to the party that submitted it and will not be considered by the Government. As far as possible, respondents should limit any request for confidential treatment of information submitted. The Government will not accept any comments that request confidential treatment of all, or a substantial part, of the comments.
